Deformation of Continental crust is evident from the structures observable at all scales, provide important constrains on the rheology, kinematics of deformation, ambient tectonic stress conditions and other processes operating within the continental crust. It seems very likely that structures in rocks contain a large amount of detailed information. However, as amateurs, we often cannot read and interpret those information, partly because we are not trained to do so, and partly because we do not know what to look for. Here in this seminar-cum-workshop organized by the Dept. of Geology G.G.D.C Manbazar-II, an expert from the field will guide us in preparing a road map to understand and interpret the geological structures observed right from the satellite imageries to microscope.

About the Speaker

Dr. Sayandeep Banerjee

Dr. Banerjee, now serving as an Assistant Professor of Geology at the Department of Geology, Banaras Hindu University, is a young scientist in the field of structural geology. He is professionally trained to untangle the deformational history of continental crust by integrating the observations from the satellite imageries, field work and microscopic analyses. In recent times he is appreciated by the geological community of India for his work on the deformation structures of Singhbhum, Bundelkhand and Himalayan terrain.

This is to certify that Dr. Nivedita Chakraborty, Assistant Professor, Department of Geology, Kabi Jagadram Roy Government General Degree College, Mejia (Bankura) has been associated with me in collaborative research since 2017. We did geological field works in different remote areas and open cast mines in and around Ariyalur, Cauvery Basin (Tamil Nadu), and Bhuj, Kutch Basin (Gujarat) during 2017-2022. We have published several papers in different peer-reviewed journals/book chapters.

We have started collaborative research on the Permo-Triassic rocks in the Raniganj Basin (Damodar Valley), West Bengal too since 2021. We did geological field trip to different rural areas of the Bankura and the Purulia district. The collaborative linkage between Dr. Chakraborty and me is for academic and research purposes.

Certificate of Collaborative Research

This is to certify that Dr. Nivedita Chakraborty, Assistant Professor at the Department of Geology, Kabi Jagadram Roy Government General Degree College, Mejia, Bankura, has been actively involved in a collaborative research project on Sedimentology and Stratigraphy of Cauvery Basin, southern India with the Department of Geology, Anna University, Chennai, since 2010. The research collaboration between these two esteemed institutions has been ongoing and has resulted in numerous publications in national and international journals. Additionally, efforts are underway to compile a comprehensive book on the Geology of the Cauvery Basin. The research interactions and intra-university collaboration have significantly contributed to the fields of sequence stratigraphy, sedimentary facies studies, and the promotion of students in Cretaceous field studies. Dr. Nivedita Chakraborty and researchers from both universities have effectively combined their expertise, resources, and efforts to complete the research project. Their collaboration has provided valuable insights and made noteworthy contributions to the understanding of Cretaceous sedimentary successions. The outcomes of this collaborative research endeavour have shed light on the correlation between outcrop and subcrop Cretaceous successions, enhancing the interpretation of seismic profiles and the refinement of litho- and biostratigraphy. We take great pleasure in acknowledging the exceptional work and dedication exhibited by Dr. Nivedita Chakraborty throughout this collaborative research initiative.

Dr. Nivedita Chakraborty's commitment to academic excellence and the pursuit of knowledge has been instrumental in the successful outcome of the collaborative project and subsequent research publications. This certificate serves as a testament to their outstanding teamwork, professionalism, and ability to work harmoniously across institutional boundaries. It recognizes its unwavering commitment to advancing scientific understanding and fostering academic collaboration. We firmly believe that the collaborative efforts will continue to yield significant advancements in the respective fields of research and inspire others to engage in fruitful collaborations. We express our sincere appreciation for Dr. Nivedita Chakraborty's contributions and extend our best wishes for continued success in their future endeavours.
